Albert Frey worked in Le Corbusier's atelier in Paris but he is most closely associated with the 1940s and 1950s desert architecture of Southern California, and with architects such as Richard Neutra and John Lautner. This text focuses on two houses that he built for himself in Palm Springs, California in 1941 (with an addition in 1953) and 1964. The houses, with a modern aesthetic, including glass walls and concrete construction, are fully incorporated into their surroundings, in keeping with Frey's principles of paralleling nature in his work.
