Bad Faith and Antiracism Lewis R. Gordon

Lewis Gordon presents the first detailed existential phenomenological investigation of antiracism as a form of Sartrean bad faith. Bad faith, the attitude in which human beings attempt to evade freedom and responsibility, is treated as a constant possibility of human existence. Antiracism, the attitude and practice that involve the construction of black people as fundamentally inferior and subhuman, is examined as an effort to evade the responsibilities of a human and humane world. Gordon argues that the concept of bad faith militates against any human science that is built upon a theory of human nature and as such offers an analysis of antiracism that stands as a challenge to our ordinary assumptions of what it means to be human.
